Victorian visitors inspire high school musicians

BALLARAT brought music to Bexley this month when students shared their melodic skills with each other. Talented musicians from Ballarat High School in Victoria visited St George to play in three ensembles. The touring groups were in Sydney for workshops with the Australian Opera Company.

Students from the high school chose to visit Bexley because of the strong ties the school had with new principal, Steven Mead.

"It was a good chance for students involved in our own creative arts programs to see what was possible in the years ahead," Mr Mead said.

Students also gave advice and support to students in their performing arts activities.
